BED BATH & BEYOND INC.,

Defendant.

Plaintiffs DONALD HESS, ELIZABETH PADILLA, JUDITH HOLLAND, TIKA JONES, HARRY LICHTMAN, DAWN MESA, ALEXANDRIA SMITH and EMILY VAHUE, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, as class representatives, by their attorneys Moser Law Firm, P.C. allege, upon personal knowledge as to themselves and upon information and belief as to other matters, as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. An employer may not “perpetually violate [NYLL] § 191 simply by paying the employee, in full, after a delay beyond the one-week period set by statute. Permitting an employer to flout the requirements of § 191 with impunity, so long as it eventually pays its employee the wages owed, is inconsistent with the stated purposes of the NYLL.” Scott v. Whole Foods Mkt. Grp., Inc., No. 18-CV-0086 (SJF) (AKT), 2019 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 61726, at *13 (E.D.N.Y. Apr. 9, 2019).

2. On October 22, 1998, Defendant’s Human Resources Director, Connie VanDyke wrote to the New York Commissioner of Labor on behalf of Defendant seeking permission to pay employees handling stock and/or merchandise (“stock/merchandise handlers”) beyond the one-week deadline set by NYLL § 191. The Department of Labor’s response dated October 28, 1998, stated, in part:

This will acknowledge receipt of your October 22, 1998 letter addressed to Director Richard J . Polsinello, wherein you made application on behalf of Bed, Bath & Beyond, Inc. for permission to pay its manual workers in New York State on a bi-weekly basis. I have enclosed a copy of Section 191.1 a (ii) of the New York State Labor Law[.]

The Department of Labor’s response further notified the Defendant that in order to qualify for an exemption from the weekly pay provisions of NYLL § 191, it must submit additional information establishing that it met the statutory criteria. There is no record showing that Defendant followed up on the 1998 application.

3. For the next 20 years, despite not being authorized to do so by the New York Commissioner of Labor, Bed Bath & Beyond, Inc. continued pay employees handling stock and merchandise every other week and continued to pay the wages earned in the first week of each bi-weekly pay period later than seven (7) days after the end of the workweek in which wages were earned.

4. Defendant finally obtained an exemption from the weekly pay requirement on November 13, 2018.

5. This lawsuit seeks to recover compensatory damages due to the Defendant’s failure to pay wages to manual workers on time as required by NYLL § 191. Plaintiffs also seek additional damages for manual workers for violations of the hiring notice provisions of NYLL §§ 195(1)(a) and § 198(1-b).

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. This Court has original jurisdiction pursuant to the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (“CAFA”), codified at 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d), because the amount in controversy against the Defendants in this matter exceeds the sum or value of $5,000,000, exclusive of interest and costs.

7. The members of the proposed class are citizens of states different from that of Defendant.

8. There are over 100 members in the proposed class.

9. Defendant is subject to personal jurisdiction in New York.

10. Venue is proper in the Eastern District of New York pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(2) because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims occurred in this District, and Defendants conduct business in this District.

DELAYED WAGES CLASS

11. Plaintiffs bring the First Cause of Action under Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, on behalf of themselves and a class of persons consisting of:

All manual workers who worked for Bed Bath & Beyond, Inc. in New York State between September 24, 2014 and November 12, 2018 (the “Delayed Wages Class”).

12. The members of the Delayed Wages Class are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable, and the disposition of their claims as a class will benefit the parties and the Court.

13. There are more than 3,700 members of the Delayed Wages Class.

14. Plaintiffs’ claims are typical of the Delayed Wages Class, and the relief sought is typical of the relief which would be sought by each member of the Delayed Wages Class in separate actions.

15. Plaintiffs and the Delayed Wages Class have all been injured in that they have been compensated in an untimely manner due to Defendant’s common policies, practices, and patterns of conduct. Defendant’s corporate-wide policies and practices affected everyone in the Delayed Wages Class similarly, and Defendant benefited from the same type of unfair and/or wrongful acts as to each member of the Delayed Wages Class.

16. Plaintiffs are able to fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Delayed Wages Class and have no interests antagonistic to the Delayed Wages Class.

17. Plaintiffs are represented by attorneys who are experienced and competent in both class action litigation and employment litigation and have previously represented many plaintiffs and classes in wage and hour cases.

18. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy – particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation where individual class members lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit against corporate defendant. Class action treatment will permit a large number of similar persons to prosecute their common claims in a single forum simultaneously, efficiently, and without the unnecessary duplication of efforts and expense that numerous individual actions engender.

19. Common questions of law and fact exist as to the Delayed Wages Class that predominate over any questions only affecting Plaintiff and/or each member of the Delayed Wages Class individually and include, but are not limited to, whether Defendant paid wages to Plaintiffs and the Delayed Wages Class on a timely basis.

HIRING NOTICE SUBCLASS

20. Plaintiffs Hess, Jones and Lichtman (the “Hiring Notice Representatives”) bring the Second Cause of Action on behalf of themselves and the following Subclass:

All members of the Delayed Wages Class who were who were hired on or after April 9, 2011 and who did not receive a notice that complied with NYLL § 195(1) within 10 business days of the date of hire.

21. The members of the Hiring Notice Subclass are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable, and the disposition of their claims as a class will benefit the parties and the Court.

22. Upon information and belief, there are more than one thousand members of the Hiring Notice Subclass.

23. The Hiring Notice Representatives' claims are typical of the Hiring Notice Subclass, and the relief sought is typical of the relief which would be sought by each member of the Hiring Notice Subclass in separate actions.

24. The Hiring Notice Representatives and the Hiring Notice Subclass have all been injured in that they have been paid wages in an untimely manner.

25. The Hiring Notice Representatives and the Hiring Notice Subclass are entitled to additional statutory damages for hiring notice violations because the Defendant failed to make "complete and timely payment of all wages due pursuant to" Article 9 of the New York Labor Law. NYLL § 198(1-b).

26. Defendant's corporate-wide policies and practices affected everyone in the Hiring Notice Subclass similarly. Each member of the Hiring Notice Subclass did not receive "complete and timely payment of all wages" and is entitled to additional statutory damages for failure to furnish a compliant hiring notice within 10 days after the date of hire.

27. The Hiring Notice Representatives are able to fairly and adequately protect the interests of the Delayed Wages Class and have no interests antagonistic to the Hiring Notice Subclass.

28. The Hiring Notice Representatives are represented by attorneys who are experienced and competent in both class action litigation and employment litigation and have previously represented many plaintiffs and classes in wage and hour cases.

29. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of the controversy – particularly in the context of wage and hour litigation where individual class members lack the financial resources to vigorously prosecute a lawsuit against corporate defendant. Class action treatment will permit a large number of similar persons to prosecute their common claims in a single forum simultaneously, efficiently, and without the unnecessary duplication of efforts and expense that numerous individual actions engender.

30. Common questions of law and fact exist as to the Hiring Notice Subclass that predominate over any questions only affecting each member of the Hiring Notice Subclass individually and include, but are not limited to, whether Defendant made “complete and timely payment of all wages due”, and if not whether the members of the Hiring Notice Subclass are entitled to additional damages arising out of the untimely payment of wages because (1) the Defendant’s form did not comply with the New York Labor Law and/or (2) the form was not signed by employees within 10 business days of the date of hire.

Facts Common to the Hiring Notice Representatives and the Hiring Notice Subclass

66. NYLL §195(1)(a) requires employer to provide a notice at the time of hiring. Furthermore,

Each time the employer provides [a hiring] notice to an employee, the employer shall obtain from the employee a signed and dated written acknowledgement, in English and in the primary language of the employee, of receipt of this notice, which the employer shall preserve and maintain for six years. Such acknowledgement shall include an affirmation by the employee that the employee accurately identified his or her primary language to the employer, and that the notice provided by the employer to such employee pursuant to this subdivision was in the language so identified[,] and shall conform to any additional requirements established by the commissioner with regard to content and form.

67. Defendant created a form which does not comply with NYLL § 195.1. Although the Defendant's form has a signature line for the employee, the form does not contain "a signed and dated written acknowledgement. . .of receipt of [the] notice" and other information required by NYLL § 195.1. The Defendant's form does not contain all of the content of the commissioner's form.

68. Moreover, even if the Defendant's form had complied with NYLL § 195.1, Defendant violated NYLL §§ 195 and 198 because it failed to obtain the employees' signatures on the forms within 10 business days of the date of hire.
